Winter Storms Knock Out Power to More than 20,000 Customers in Dakotas, Iowa January 19-26

Winter storms blasted North Dakota, South Dakota and Iowa from January 19 onward, damaging rural electric grids and cutting power to at least 24,500 customers, multiple sources reported. The storms affected some 5,800 South Dakota Rural Electric Association customers—at least 10,000 customers, statewide—about 5,500 North Dakota electric cooperative customers, and more than 9,000 Iowa Association of Electric Cooperative customers. Some customers were expected to remain in the dark for weeks, news sources said, as the blizzards downed about 6,000 utility poles in South Dakota and more than 2,000 in North Dakota. Fewer than 5,700 rural South Dakota customers, at least 4,530 North Dakota Association of Rural Electric Cooperatives customers, and just over 3,000 Iowa Association of Electric Cooperative customers remained without power, as of latest reports. North Dakota Governor John Hoeven waived hours-of-service restrictions for commercial truck drivers on January 25, a separate source said.

U.S. Wind Energy Industry Installs Nearly 10,000 MW in 2009—AWEA

The U.S. Wind industry installed a record 9,922 MW of new generating capacity in 2009, boosting the nation's total wind capacity to over 35,000 MW, the American Wind Energy Association (AWEA) said in its Q4 Report. Despite the build, U.S. wind turbine manufacturing dropped from 2008 levels. To read the report, click on the first link below.

Update: Companies Slow Three Refineries after Weekend Shutdown of Sabine-Neches Waterway

Three Texas refineries—ExxonMobil's 348,500 b/d Beaumont facility, Motiva's 285,000 b/d Port Arthur facility and Total's 174,000 b/d Port Arthur facility reduced rates after a weekend vessel accident forced shut the associated Sabine-Niches waterway, a Coast Guard Captain said on January 25. Motiva curtailed its 285,000 b/d Port Arthur, Texas facility by 100,000 b/d, a source familiar with the facility's operations said. A Shell representative did not confirm the 100,000 b/d figure, but did say the refinery was reduced. Motiva is a joint venture of Shell and Saudi Aramco. The waterway remained offline on January 26, three days after an 807-foot tanker collided with a barge and spilled an estimated 462,000 gallons of oil, sources said. The U.S. Coast Guard, however, expected to reopen it to "limited" traffic, beginning on January 28, and companies appeared unlikely to request any releases from the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve. ExxonMobil did not expect the event to have "an immediate significant impact on our operations," Total said it was "managing our operations in light of restrictions in marine traffic to and from the Gulf of Mexico and destinations to the west." Valero said it had not reduced its Port Arthur facilities. http://www.nasdaq.com/aspx/stock-market-news-

Millennium Pipeline Company Launches Binding Open Season for Expansion Project along Natural Gas Pipeline in New York January 25

The company plans to expand natural gas deliveries between Independence, New York and Ramapo, New York, according to a statement. The project will provide incremental firm transportation capacity along Millennium's entire mainline and, depending on the response, may offer firm back haul capacity from the Ramapo interconnection with Algonquin Gas Transmission along the mainline to the interconnection with Empire Pipeline at Corning, New York. The company expects to open the project on November 1, 2013. The open season began yesterday, January 25, and ends on February 12.
